the editor's notes

It's my first time uploading the newest chapter of Misochristma Factor! Wow, I'm so excited! That aside, this chapter was very delightful to do, very simple, very neat. My only complaint is that there is too much text. I read through every single one of the dialogue, and spent HOURS referencing it with the Japanese sites (or what I can make of it, since I'm not learning Japanese, nor have I really made much of an effort to) to ensure accuracy.

Even before I started inserting the text, I stumbled upon an already uploaded version of Misochristma Factor chapter 63. I can't quite remember the site, but the drawing was excellent, and the translations were very good too. The translations here and those there differ by a bit, but I believe that this shouldn't affect the plot at all. I tried to find the site again but I think I lost it... T.T.TT Anyway, I hope you have enjoyed this chapter. Shirogane stopped being the bad guy here, which means he was the bad guy for 2-3 chapters. Wow. That must be the record for the shortest time as a villain...

Also, I also realize that Shirogane changed a whole lot from the first time he appeared - you might want to compare him on page 1 of this chapter to him from chapter 1 - completely different people...

the editor's notes

This is the second last chapter of Mangochrome Factor. It's really so sad that it's ending like this. I really loved the character development in this manga, although I do find Akira a bit annoying (always did find his design was a little strange).

Anyway, I hope you've enjoyed this chapter, and I hope you will enjoy the next one. This chapter was ridiculously easy to clean, a very small amount of transparent bubbles needed redrawing, which made me a little redundant. However, the dialogue here was an overwhelming number, which made the proofreading and page referencing a massive pain. Well, I hope it was paid off. I'm aware that some transitions might look strange, though, since I really couldn't find better words or phrasing, likely due to my incapability.

This chapter made me like Sawaki a lot. I'm not quite sure why, maybe it's because he doesn't seem like an end magnetismed anymore (oh, well, that's Horanaka). As he said himself, I think he seems more human, but then again, I thought one ceases to be human once one becomes a "child".

Treasurer's Talk:

Misamar,

First of all ,I really wants to say " Gomen nasai" because this chapter been out late. I'm just finishes my studies and I'm working now. So, I'm fatigue once I arrived at home and I truly feel bad about this prolong.

I feel excited when I'm translating this manga ., I of course! hear all you guys' comments about my bad English! ^^ I felt ashamed regarding my second language. But, I'm happy when working with Femerz13 and Vitsuka as well. For Femerz13, I'm really happy when you offering yours help and thank you for the great clearing.

For Vitsuka, how should I say it? Our first encounter is quite surprise because she asking me either I'm Pyottaki and this really shocking!!! and I'm replying that I'm not having bad intention and I'm talking on a side. But, it's turns out well and she been my provider since then.

Really happy because the unique cooperation between ours combination is unique. (One Savaun, One Singapore and One Malaysia)

Monochrome Factor, I will missed it a lot! Next project... when I will start translate task again??

Should I translate Mother Keeper or Katskyo Human Robot is???

Any way, to my two great fellows, please stay in touch ya!!

SUNSET

I had no one waiting
When I arrived
The darkness around the things that support the world is the only the things which I cannot get rid of ever more

around at once
The beginning but the where light and shadows
it into its watery form
there you will find
